Mokena Pastor Accepts Call From Lyons, Illinois Evangelical Church

Theodore Haeefe, pastor of the St. John Evangelical and Reformed church in Mokena for the past eight years, tendered his resignation last Sunday, announcing that he had accepted a call from the congregation of the St. John Evangelical and Reformed church at Lyons, Illinois and will take his new charge about December first.

Rev. Haeefe came to the St. John church in Mokena as its pastor December 18, 1934.

He will preach his farewell sermon Sunday, November 29.

The American People Have Spoken

The American people are long suffering, willing to make any sacrifice called upon providing it is for the best interests and welfare of their country, but these same people can also be mighty in their wrath when they feel that the men they placed in public office have betrayed their trust.

The American people have become disgusted with the incompetence, blundering and bungling of the Democrats in the prosecution of the war program and of the growing strength of the Communist element in the administration. The American people also have had a growing suspicion that if the incompetent element was allowed to run unchecked America might be heading toward a dictatorship and losing its freedom.

Tuesday the American voters showed that they still are a free people and still have the right of franchise to express their desires with. The election which was a virtual GOP landslide from coast to coast demonstrated to the people of Europe that in a free democracy as ours we can dump out our government heads if we feel they are not serving their country well and we do not have to take orders from any dictator.

The great Republican landslide which swept many Republican candidates into office, also places a great responsibility upon the victors. The voters have shown their faith and confidence in the leadership of the Republicans and will expect them to live up to these expectations, and do not want to hear any lame duck statements that their pre-election promises were only political oratory.

The Republicans must make good on the job entrusted to them.

The Republicans have not always been angels nor true, to their trust, we are sorry to admit. In the past they have abused their power and have not lived up to the faith reposed in them by the electorate and this caused the voters to lose faith in them and they were dumped over board for a New Deal which now is also being relegated to the scrap heap because the people feel they have not hit the ball as was expected of them.

It is now up to the victorious GOP candidates to redeem in good faith all the election campaign pledges they made and see to it that they do not deviate one iota from them. Republicans must demonstrate to the American people that they can perform and deliver as they promised the voters they would.

Tinley Couple Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. C. Andres of Tinley Park had the pleasure of entertaining and receiving the felicitations of about 150 relatives, neighbors and friends at an open house held at their home Tuesday afternoon and evening in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

The honored couple received many beautiful floral tributes and golden anniversary cards and other tokens of remembrance of the occasion.

Among the beautiful floral tributes were roses and chrysanthemums and this gorgeous array of pretty flowers transformed the parlor into a virtual flower garden.

Rev. R. J. L. McKeivley, pastor of the Tinley Park Methodist church, and Rev. Albert Buddenhagen of the Zion Lutheran church also attended the Open House. The honored couple celebrated their anniversary in the same room in which they were married 50 years ago. On Nov. 3, 1892 Christian Andres and Miss Henrietta Nielsen were united in marriage with Rev. Mr. Krebs, the Pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church at Bachelor's Grove officiating. In commenting on the day of their marriage Mr. Andres relates that the weather was very stormy and rainy and that good roads were then unknown, and that they were unable to make the trip to the Trinity church because of the extremely muddy roads but that Rev. Mr. Krebs drove to Tinley Park with a horse and light cart to perform the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andres have resided in the same home that they started housekeeping in half a century ago.

The attendants at their wedding were Mrs. Elizabeth Hardinger and Wm. H. Nielsen both of whom are living. The Tinley Park fire department of which Mr. Andres has been a member for a number of years, attended the evening Open House in a body. Among the guests present were Mr. Geo. Schreiber, life long friend of the honored couple, and Mr. Andres sister, Mrs. Katie Goebel and his brother Adam Andres, the latter two being from Overton, Neb.

Last Sunday following the morning service at the Tinley Park Methodist church, a pot luck dinner was served in the church parlors and Mr. and Mrs. Andres were presented at that time with a basket of beautiful chrysanthemums. Mr. Andres has been a life long resident of Tinley Park and served as postmaster and rural mail carrier for many years. The honored couple and guests thoroughly enjoyed the occasion and renewing of old friendships. Their friends extend best wishes for many more happy anniversaries. Mr. and Mrs. Andres deeply appreciate and extend their thanks to all their friends for the beautiful gifts of remembrance by way of flowers and cards sent to them in honor of their anniversary.

MOKENA SCRAP DRIVE IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Through the efforts of several organizations the second day of Mokena's Scrap Drive was very successful. Following so soon after our original day we really expected to find mostly low price scrap only. We were agreeably surprised to have an appreciable amount of heavy, melting stock picked up.

The first day produced 5700 lbs. heavy melting iron. The second day 3960 lbs.

Paper the first day, when we received a long price, totaled 1570 lbs. On the second day we were fortunate in getting anything for paper and our pick up amounted to 4000 lbs.

These were our big items. In addition to these we had rags, almost a ton and small amounts of copper, brass and aluminum. Thanks to the generous citizens we now have a small working fund. The total receipts of the scrap drive grossed $101.57.

Our thanks to Mr. G. W. Dunn for his work in enlisting the aid of all school children, Mrs. Albert Cappel for the work done by her troop of Girl Scouts, Mr. Robert Geuther for the help of his troop of Boy Scouts and especially to Mr. Fred Steinhagen for services of himself and his equipment. Mr. Harry Mall has given most generously of his time and we are greatly indebted to him for not only this but also for providing a Deposit Station.

Raymond McGuire, chairman scrap drive.

The "enemy," using blanks, fires directly into the dog's face, but the dog never falters. In second picture the Great Dane has the "enemy" by the arm and is pulling him down, and in picture at the right the enemy is falling. Although the trainer had great layers of elk hide and wool in his sleeve, the dog's teeth marked his arm.

Before the grass thatch is put on, the beams are securely tied with strips of bark which the natives are shown peeling. In the background the framework of one house is all but completed. Little forks that two of the natives wear in their hair are solely for pleasure—the pleasure of scratching.

W.N.U. RELEASE

"Of course I don't know what she said," the judge admitted with a faint frown. "But whatever she said it didn't last long, for Amelia fainted, and when she came to she was very ill—and the baby was born within the hour."

Just a week later Cherry sat opposite the judge in his comfortable chambers.

His kindly eyes smiled at her. "It's the summer plan—the camp at Big Basin—you wanted to see me about?"

"No, not unless you object. Beck and I can't wait to pack. We go next Tuesday, and the girls begin to come in Saturday."

"Then what was the trouble, Cherry? Your letter said 'trouble.'"

"It's this. Amy came down to see me Wednesday. I didn't know she was going to. She wanted to tell me all about the trip and this Navy Basin she's so crazy about."

"Yes, but why look so distressed about that? You like Amy?"

"I do like Amy. Amy's my—of course we're pretty closely related, Amy and I. But one thing is—one thing is that your mother doesn't like me to see Amy too much. She asked me—she practically asked me—not to come to the house any more."

A shadow came over the genial face; the judge's forehead contracted a little.

"My mother did?"

"Yes. She said it wasn't—decent." "H'm!" the judge said, gravely enough. "I'm sorry she did that. You know how much we all like you, and what reason I have for feeling that I've something to make up to you."

"Amy came in while your mother was talking to me. I'd reached the house before Amy did, and I was in my room, reading, and your mother came in and said how much she resented my being there."

"How much did Amy hear?"

"Well, your mother had just said that if I didn't break off all my relationships there, she'd have to let everyone know, and Amy too, that we were half sisters. And she said that would hurt my father, and my mother, too. And I said that that meant injuring the reputation of her own son! Amy heard that."

"And guessed the rest?"

"Guessed that it was you, instead of your brother Fred. After your mother had gone Amy said that she always had suspected that I was—Cherry's throat thickened, she looked at him imploringly, "that I was your daughter."

"I see," he said thoughtfully.

"I didn't contradict her—I couldn't say anything. I kept trying to think which would be worse, telling her, or letting it go and talking some day to you."

"Fran and I were in Los Angeles then?"

"Yes. And then I went to Palo Alto and didn't see you, and I knew that your mother cared more about keeping it from Amy than anything else, and I hoped that Amy wouldn't talk. But now Amy's back, and she wants me to come in to spend the night with her next Saturday, and go the Quatres Arts Ball, and I don't know what to do!"

"My mother's a proud woman, Cherry," the judge said, after a silence. "She's had a sad life."

"She had been living in an apartment hotel and hating it. Fred and his wife, Amelia, had had a little place in Burlingame. But after years, five or six years, I think, she was going to have a baby. Old Wellington, her father, was an immensely rich man; he was going to come on from New York for the event, and do everything for the baby. Fred, who'd been restless and unsatisfied, settled down all of a sudden. Mother had opened the city house by this time, and they were all together. The baby was coming in November—"

"I know. I'm four days older than Amy," Cherry, listening absorbedly, put in as he paused.

"But you came two months too soon. That's all part of the story. Well! My wife and I and little Gregg got here just a week or two before Amy was born, and what we learned was rather confusing. It seems that Emma's sister, Charlotte Rawlings—much younger than she—was sometimes at the house, and that Fred had seen this girl, and had taken advantage of her. Emma knew nothing of it until almost the end when Lottie came to her and told her. Emma felt that nobody must know, that her sister's secret must be kept now, of all times, when Fred's wife, who wasn't any too strong, was expecting her own baby any day.

"But poor little Lottie couldn't bear it. One night she suddenly appeared in my brother's room, as he was reading to his wife, and accused him of having ruined her life!"

"If I was the baby," Cherry said, hardly breathing. "I must have been born just about that time, too."

"You were only a few days old. Your mother, poor Lottie, was perhaps weak and feverish, hardly knowing what she was doing."

"But she couldn't have come to the house. She'd have been too weak."

"She may have been in the house with Emma. I have always suspected that Emma was there and the baby was born there. However it was, she rushed into Amelia's room. Amelia had lost all control of herself, she was sobbing bitterly."

"Did she say anything about the baby?"

"No. Amelia never knew about the baby."

"Of course I don't know what she said," the judge admitted with a faint frown. "But whatever she said, it didn't last long, for Amelia fainted, and when she came to she was very ill, and the baby was born within the hour."

Emma came hurrying down and took Lottie away, and a few days later Emma left my mother, and she and Lottie went to live somewhere in the country.

"Fred was killed in a motor smash a few years later, and Amelia didn't survive long. My mother took charge of Amy, and the money my brother left for you I administered as best I could. Emma had sent her sister to this school of Saint Dorothea's for a while, when she was little but Lottie hated it and came back. 'A school of character,' as the catalogue says, and she wanted you sent there."

Cherry was standing; she came over to his chair, bent over him swiftly, and he felt her warm lips against his forehead.

"I love you! There's never any trouble for anyone where you are!" she said, and was gone.

"Oh, the relief, Kelly!" she wrote him from camp. "The relief of doing something you simply don't want to do, and having it over, and your soul as clear as a bell!"

"When will you see me? When college opens. For three delicious weeks before that, as soon as we close camp, Rebecca and I and a darling girl named Lucie Fargo are going on a wild cruise. Up to Victoria—we'll actually be out of America, imagine!—and on the way home we're going to stay with Lucie's grandmother, who has a country hotel. That's up in Mendocino County, not far from Aunt Emma's place; it's only about thirty miles. So I've written Aunt Emma that I'm coming over to see her."

And she signed it "Your devoted and obedient Marchioness."

But despite high spirits she dreaded the visit to Emma, and was glad that it was to be put off until the end of the holiday.

In due time she and Rebecca and Lucie drove along the ocean coast, and into high mountains, and through valleys where great rivers raced. It was all glorious and restful and exciting.

When they were back in California with the great mountains and the days of laughter and change and adventure behind them, Cherry felt herself older and wiser. On a certain sober September afternoon she presented herself at the door of Emma's cabin with nothing more than a little shyness in her manner.

Emma lived in a lumber country. Cherry, for her drive of thirty miles, had borrowed the car, leaving the other girls with Lucie's grandmother.

Emma had been lying on the couch, evidently napping; she welcomed Cherry pleasantly enough, but without an embrace, and put the girl into a chair at the hearth while she started a fire and lighted one dim kerosene lamp.

DEMOCRACY STREAMLINING

If the President and the country want to get a full realization of how democracy is streamlining for action they should think back to the summer of 1941, just one year ago, when, for what seemed like unending weeks, the congress stewed over extension of the selective service act.

Senate and house isolationists were haranguing the galleries on the inequities of keeping the boys more than one year in camp; telling the public how the navy was already convoying ships; revealing in advance that Roosevelt had sent troops to Iceland.

Finally by the thin margin of one vote, 203 to 202, and thanks to the sage generalship of Speaker Sam Rayburn, the selective service act was extended. Had it not been for that narrow victory, we should have had no army to rush to Australia, and the whole war effort would have received a tragic set-back.

But last week, a war-gear house of representatives passed the 18-19 year draft extension act in three days; and it should be passed by the senate and signed by the President inside the week.

Politically and personally, nobody wanted the 18-19 year draft extension. It was the worst time to pass it, just before elections. But congress is doing a much better job than most people realize for streamlined democracy.

ATROCITY PICTURES

A strong debate is raging among propaganda chiefs over the question of atrocity stories and pictures. The government has received a lot of such material from Allied sources, especially the Chinese and Poles, including such horrible scenes as Japanese attacking Chinese women, and pouring oil on live bodies before setting the torch to them.

Opponents of publication argue that the atrocity stories of the last war were largely invented, and when so exposed left the public disillusioned; thus the people might now react unfavorably and charge the government with pulling the same tricks.

Other officials argue, however, that the material is authentic, that it is not posters and rumors, but actual photographs, and the public should know what sort of enemies we are fighting.

It is apparently a part of the German psychological warfare to treat British and Americans with reasonable humaneness in order to keep us lulled in a state of moderate warfare. They save their worst tricks for the conquered nations and the Russians.

The Poles and Chinese are urging use of the material as a necessary means of fully arousing the American public to the menace.

Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is set to go, once the debate is settled.

DAIRY MANPOWER

Fortnight Sen. Berkeley Bunker of Nevada had a long talk with the President the other day on the war manpower problem, in which he emphasized the need of swift action to meet the labor shortage on dairy farms.

"I'm from a farm area myself and I know what these dairy people are up against," said Bunker. "Unless we move fast we will have a serious shortage next year. Already, many farmers are beginning to slaughter their dairy herds because they can't get help to tend them."

The President admitted the problem was serious, and assured Bunker that the War Manpower commission was aware of it. He added, however, that he doubted any steps the government might take to relieve the farm labor shortage would be a complete answer.

"The government can't solve this alone," said Roosevelt. "We are going to have to depend on the farmers themselves for individual initiative. I'll give you an example of what I mean."

The President then told how a neighbor of his in New York state, owning a large dairy farm, had partly solved his labor shortage by employing students from a near-by high school to milk the cows.

"Boys did the milking in the morning and a group of girls from the same school took over in the afternoons," he said.

"That sounds like a good idea, Mr. President," observed Senator Bunker, "but it isn't exactly a new one. When I was a boy on a Nevada farm, I used to milk 10 cows every morning before school and 10 at night. And I had to ride eight miles to school on a bus."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Congressman Ed Isaac of California, who is crusading against army and navy "cellophane commissions," is the only sitting member of congress to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor in the last war. Taken prisoner after his ship was sunk by a U-boat, Isaac four times tried to escape, once jumping from a 40-miles-an-hour train. He still bears the scars of German prison camp beatings.

SNAPPY FACTS

ABOUT RUBBER

For years the U. S. has consumed over half the world's supply of rubber. Close to 70% of the rubber imported by the U. S. was used in the manufacture of tires and tubes and tire accessories.

Last year a 6.00 by 16 4-ply black sidewall tire weighed 21.54 pounds, of which 11.2 pounds was crude rubber. The balance of the weight was in rubber, fabric, wire and chemicals.

Several years ago a man from Seattle traded a small house for one of the earliest types of automobile tires, of which he was a collector.

The most welcome gift for a Ugandan bride of Africa is an old automobile tire, which she wears as a necklace on special occasions.

The tires on the "Spirit of St. Louis" in the Smithsonian Institution are fifteen years old and still good.

BREMEN HOME BUREAU

Miss Fannie Brooks, Extension Health Specialist in Illinois will be the featured speaker at an open meeting of the Cook County Home Bureau on November 12 at 8 o'clock in the Community High school, 12915 Maple St., Blue Island. Her subject will be "Keeping Up the Morale in the Home."

Miss Brooks has been health specialist in Illinois since 1914 with the exception of five years spent in war service and as assistant superintendent of nurses at Mt. Sinai Hospital New York City. Above All A Good Roof

THE modern way of re-roofing puts the new roof on right over the old. It's much better and much cheaper than the old way of tearing off the old shingles first. You retain the additional insulation of your present roof. This helps to keep your home warmer in winter and cooler in summer. Saves on fuel bills. Practically everybody is re-roofing this new way. We'd like to show you some homes we have re-roofed this modern way with Slate-Surfaced Logan-Long Asphalt Shingles. We offer you, now, our free roof inspection service. This costs you nothing either now or later and will probably save you money in the long run. Phone us now.

Dear Mrs. Jones:

Well how are you all back home. This is Walter Niedringhaus. When I was in Norfolk I started to receive the News Bulletin, but got sent to Bermuda. I appreciate receiving the News Bulletin very much, it seems real good to get it, because we have nothing here. We don't get papers here. When we do get a paper its from England or some other place. Now I'll describe the place where I am at. The population is 32,000 and 12,000 are white and the rest are colored. They have no automobiles here. They use horse and buggies and bicycles. We use British money down here.

I'm striking for a Communication Yeoman. In the radio room. It's the dearest place I've ever been to. I work different hours every day. Tonight I am working from midnight till eight in the morning. Tell Bob congratulations on his marriage. It looks like a couple of us got married from out there. My wife is from Texas. My new address is as follows: Walter Niedringhaus, USN NOB Bermuda, care postmaster New York. You don't know how good it makes me feel to receive the News Bulletin from home. When you're so far away from home it feels good to read the news from home. Well I'm not very good in writing letters and I can never think of what to say. So I guess I'll have to sign off.

Yours truly,

Wally

MULCAHY ANNOUNCES

"COUPON CREDITS" FOR FUEL OIL.

Consumers of fuel oil may continue to purchase on "coupon credit" up to and including November 15, has been announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, Director of Office of Price Administration for the Chicago Metropolitan Area. This extends the period from Nov. 1 in which the consumers may sign promissory notes assuring their dealers that they will repay them in coupons when they are issued.

The period of the redemption of these coupons has also been extended to Nov. 21. This extension was necessary, Mr. Mulcahy said, in order to relieve the situation as far as the consumer is concerned. The delay in forms being available would have shortened the period between the filing of the consumer application and the necessity of purchasing with coupon only, thereby causing inconvenience to the public.

The consumer, however, is asked to file his application for fuel oil with his Local War Price and Rationing Board. The consumer of fuel oil is reminded that the rationing is and has been in effect commencing Oct. 1, the extensions being only for the purpose of enabling them to maintain heat on the credit system of purchase until such time as the coupons are in their hands. This will enable the Local Boards to process these applications and issue consumer coupons as soon as they are available.

Mr. Vernon Brandau, President Tinley Park Methodist Church as a group are grateful for the beautiful organ, the gift of the Brothers and sisters, nephews and nieces of the late John and Mrs. Andres which was dedicated last Sunday by the pastor Dr. J. L. McKelvey. A large congregation heard the Second Anniversary sermon and participated in the Organ Dedication Service.
After the Dedication service a large group of people enjoyed a fellowship dinner. Mrs. Frances Kedro and her helpers made every one feel at home and saw that they had plenty to eat.

At the close of the meal the pastor presented a beautiful bouquet on behalf of the church to Mr. and Mrs. Christian Andres in recognition of Mrs. Andres birthday and of their Fiftieth Wedding anniversary.

The pastor quoted the words of Browning:
Grow old along with me
The best is yet to be
The last of life for which the first was made

Our times are in His hand who said a whole I planned

Trust God, do right be not afraid. And applied it in a fitting manner to the life of brother and sister Andres. He said they were to be congratulated and honored to have lived fifty happy years together. That life was not self centered but that they had a part in every worthwhile project of the community.

Mr. Weber of Chicago who represents the organ company put on a recital in the afternoon that was enjoyed by a large congregation.

In the evening the Youth Fellowship put on a Motion Picture which described the missionary work of our church in South America and in the Philippine Islands.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 1.

The Golden Text was, "My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord; neither be weary of his correction: for whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth" (Proverbs 3: 11, 12).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee? Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face" (Psalms 89: 8, 14).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love corrects and governs man. Men may pardon, but this divine Principle alone reforms the sinner. To cause suffering as the result of sin, is the means of destroying sin. Every supposed pleasure in sin will furnish more than its equivalent of pain, until belief in material life and sin is destroyed" (p. 6).

Your PARTY LINE is helping HIM!

Taking party-line telephone service may not seem to be a contribution to Victory... but it is!

Telephone lines take copper—lots of it—and there's no substitute we can use. Fighting equipment to win this war takes copper, too.

That's why we have not been building more telephone lines for civilian use and why existing facilities must be stretched and shared as far as possible. Party lines instead of individual lines release thousands of tons of vital materials for war uses.

That's why on a party line it is patriotic to be a good "telephone neighbor" to others on the line.

IT'S PATRIOTIC TO BE A PARTY-LINE "GOOD NEIGHBOR"

1. Answer your calls promptly.
2. Make sure the line is not in use before dialing or signaling operator.
3. Avoid interrupting the other party's conversation.
4. Replace receiver promptly after a call.
5. Try not to monopolize the line with long conversations.
6. If you have several calls to make, allow the other party time to make or receive calls between yours.
7. Be neighborly—be brief—and you'll find the other party ready to give you the same consideration.

JAPAN FORGOT TO REMEMBER

September one, nineteen twenty three "Japan will never forget" The mercies that came across the sea To succor the living yet.

Doctors and nurses worked with ardor That black day in September, Japs blasted our ships at Pearl Harbor They forgot to remember.

Japan returned evil for much good; Ten million dollars we raised, Across the sea went shiploads of food Doctors and nurses Japs praised.

Her envoys came here, and they connived; Came seventh of December, Murderers to Pearl Harbor arrived, She forgot to remember.

We MUST remember not to forget The stealth with which she brought war, Japs' proffered hand for what she could get; That has not been done before.

When Japan's cities to bits are blown The Rising Sun an ember, When her slaves are free and on their own; Japan, then, will remember. —John O. Durkee

BOOT TRAINING

The life of a Navy Recruit by Edward L. Lockhart New Lenox now in— Co.-1160 M/N 2/c

The life of a "boot", is a hectic one! Its hard, it's tough-yet full of fun- We work and drill, and "steel the decks," And long for the arms, of the "weaker-sex."

A navy haircut is fast! believe me! Look at a "boots" head, and you will see— We toss our hat into the air, And when it comes down, we're minus our hair.

The shortest haircut we've had in years, Clipped to the tune of the barbers shears; All curly locks and wavy hair, Lost in a minute spent-in the barbers chair.

For our own, and Country's sake, They deem it wise to vaccinate— From diseases at least, we'll be all a few more "shots", and we'll be "bullet-proof!"

We scrub our clothes with brush and soap, To own a washer, is a sailor's hope. We cuss at this, we cuss at that, And woe to the one, who dirties our hat!

If luck is with us through the nite And a "watch" for us, is not in sight; We go to sleep, and enjoy our dream— "Til the dorm" guard wakes us at 05:15.

There's many a sailor who shouts "O Heck!" In answer to the call—"Let's hit the deck". So its out of the hammocks-I mean right now! Then we wash up and shave, and muster for chow.

On the parade ground, we march as you may know, To the commands we get, from our C. P. O. Its "Forward March", and "Parade Rest", too—"Left Face", and Right Face, these we must do.

"To the rear, March", and Stand at ease, "About face", and Halt, its things like these— That tire our feet, "Til they feel dead And make a hammock feel, like a feather bed.

We set on the deck, or just lie prone And write out letters to those at home. When the mail call is held each day— We hope for news from home,—now far away.

Now the things I've mentioned seem hard, at best; And would make one believe, we get no rest. Moments we have, when there's nothing to do, For these we are grateful, I'm telling you.

As our training period nears its end, Our thoughts toward home, just naturally bend; And as we each go, our several ways We will always remember these training days.

And when in years, by chance we meet, One of our bunk-mates on the street- We can add humor to any situation, By talking of these days, at Great Lakes Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heiting received the following letter from the Commanding General of the Army Air Force Training Center at Randolph Field, Texas, the West Point of the Air, in regard to their son William who in a recent examination for admission to this school placed 2nd among a large list of candidates:

"In a memorandum which has come to my desk this morning, I note that your boy, now an Aviation Cadet, has been specially selected for training as a Pilot in the Army Air Forces.

"In order to win the war, it is vital to have the best qualified young men at the controls of our Military aircraft. Upon their precision, daring and coolness, will depend in a large measure the success of our entire war effort.

"The duties of an Army Pilot call for a high degree of mental and physical alertness, sound judgment and an inherent aptitude for flying. Men who will make good material for training as combat pilots are rare. The Classification Board believes your boy is one of them.

"If he shows the progress we confidently expect of him, he will in all probability win his wings as a qualified pilot.

"Considering the rigid requirements for this training, you have every reason to be proud of your boy today. I congratulate you and him.

"Sincerely yours, H. R. HARMON, Major General, U. S. Army, Commanding."

Parents of the members of the Orland 4H club are reminded of the 4H Achievement meeting which is to be held November 21 at the Doctor school.

There will be fun and surprises for all. Bob Wakeland, club reporter

APIARISTS TO GET SUGAR FROM OPA

Apiarists will be allowed extra sugar to help their bee colonies to survive the winter, it was announced today by Michael E. Mulcahy, OPA Director for the Chicago Metropolitan Area. Last summer's weather was such that the 1942 honey crop was greatly below the average, and the extra sugar, which is agreed, is necessary to keep the bees alive until they can start on the 1943 crop.

Bees are an important factor in the war effort because bees wax is necessary in the production of munitions. Honey also relieves the sugar shortage to a vast extent.

An extra allotment of 15 pounds of sugar may be obtained for each colony, Mr. Mulcahy said, after applications have been filed out, which include a pledge not to take any honey out of any colony until the bees begin to produce honey.

Detailed information is obtainable at the local Rationing Boards.

FORTY-SEVEN-YEAR-OLD, 210-pound hard-rock Jack Dempsey was putting in another busy day. Now a lieutenant in the coast guard at Manhattan Beach, the ex-heavyweight champion is directing the conditioning of several thousand men, who need this conditioning badly.

I spent the day with Lieutenant Jack, and I've never seen a busier man at work. From seven-thirty in the morning until nightfall he and his staff of instructors handle 3,000 recruits every day.

The wind was whipping in from the ocean as Jack moved from group to group, speeding up their work, giving out encouragement, helping his assistants on the job.

"They are great fellows," Jack said, "but they need this badly. More than anyone might believe. Do you know that out of 3,000 men here more than 2,500 never boxed, wrestled, or played any game to speak of? You'd be surprised how many couldn't even chin themselves once—just once. When they came here they didn't know how to hold their hands—nor how to stand. Look at 'em now."

The Dempsey Program

It was put up to Dempsey to work out this program and he's done a great job. We moved from group to group—100 fighters here, 100 wrestling close by, a juditsu class, a calisthenics class.

"What's this?" I asked Jack. "That's our kicking squad," he said. "We teach 'em how to kick the enemy and how to keep from being kicked.

"Nothing fancy here. It's all rough-and-ready, hard work, toughening up. No frills. And they eat it up. These kids are great. They average around 22 years and most of them never had a chance for any form of athletics before. They find out what it does for them in just a few weeks.

Building Confidence

"What we are working on beyond fitness," Jack said, "is speed and poise. But more than all, confidence in themselves.

"When they first come here they have no confidence at all. In about three weeks they are different fellows—heads-up, come-and-try-to-take-me fellows."

Jack moves around—"Hey, keep punching—keep punching—keep those hands up—what's the trouble—one in the stomach? Well, take a little rest. Then go and get him."

You would be more than surprised to see the difference between first-week classes and fourth-week classes. The improvement in speed, skill, poise, toughness and stamina is amazing.

Each group gets two hours a day of this in addition to coast guard duties, and that leaves little time for any resting spots. Putting in eight or nine hours a day, Dempsey at 210 looks as fit as he did at Maumee Bay 23 years ago. As fast? That's something else that belongs only to youth.

About Louis and Conn

I asked Jack what he thought about the heavyweight situation.

"After another year in the army," Dempsey said, "neither Louis nor Conn can expect to be near the old fighting form. Louis isn't a kid any longer. A year's layoff, or a longer layoff, is sure to tell heavily on his speed, his timing and his reflexes.

"I laid off at times too long myself. I know what it means to see a punch coming, but seeing it too late—or rather, not being able to call on my reflexes in time—is something else.

"If Louis and Conn remain in the army two years, it will be a miracle if either ever can come back to championship form. Both are great fighters and great fellows. But army training is entirely different from the speed and the sharpness you need in the ring.

"And there's that thing they call co-ordination. After a long layoff they just don't gel any more—there's no team play between them.

"Joe and Billy may be better than anything left after the war, but they won't be the Louis and the Conn we saw in their big fight."

Speaking Sports by Bob McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE Big Minds of college football have plenty to worry about as the 1942 season reaches the half-way point. Transportation problems have plagued more than one college. Schedule changes have caused quite a few disappointments and decreased attendance figures are responsible for considerable grief.

The latter problem looms exceedingly large at the moment. Not that the others aren't important, but gate receipts—or lack of them—cause no more concern to the average college than would an onslaught of the black plague.

A comparatively early analysis of college football attendance revealed some discouraging information. In the first 127 games played by 44 major colleges this year, attendance was about 25 per cent lower than in 1941.

The decrease was general. In the Big Nine, only Purdue showed an increase in its first three games. Attendance throughout the conference was off almost 50 per cent.

The Big Drop

In their first 127 games, the 44 colleges played before a total of 2,296,797 spectators. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a turnout of 3,028,955.

While these early-season figures are subject to decided change, it must be taken for granted that they indicate a trend. Football has proved more exciting than ever this year. Upsets are more numerous. Nevertheless, attendance slumps are the rule rather than the exception. The sharpest drop was reported by Cornell, where attendance was slashed from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,587 this year. Cornell places much of the blame on inaccessibility, the rest on poor performance.

Ohio State dropped from 246,831 to 173,161. Buckeye officials figure that it will take all 10 games on this year's schedule to equal the eight-game 1941 total of 486,468. They're not too sure the extra two games will make up the difference. Last year scores of school busses from all sections of the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions. Today such use of busses is forbidden.

Major Problem

While the importance of paying customers cannot be overemphasized, colleges are faced with a still bigger problem—the future of football. It's none too rosy. In fact, you may be looking at your last college games for some time.

James B. Conant, president of Harvard, recently told the incoming freshman class they had but a "relatively few months of college life" ahead of them.

"I say 'few months,'" Dr. Conant said, "for I believe the draft age soon will be lowered and I feel sure none of you wish to be left behind in college as your contemporaries march off to war." Subsequent draft legislation regarding 18 and 19-year-olds proved the truth of the educator's remarks.

His statements left little doubt about the future of football at Harvard if the war continues. And the factors influencing Harvard will have as profound a bearing upon all other colleges of the nation.

Effect of War

It is obvious, of course, that war already is having its effect on football. Freshmen and sophomores are seeing more action all the time. Most of the conferences allowing freshmen to play are doing so for the first time. The many startling upsets of the present season are due in part to the more widespread use of youngsters. They are not as consistent as the juniors and seniors, and are more likely to turn in an excellent performance one game, a ragged showing the next.

In almost every college, football practically supports the entire athletic program. The present lack of cash customers is likely to result in a curtailment of minor sports—especially those which are consistent drains on the athletic department treasury. Some schools have attempted to overcome the transportation problem by shifting their games to centers where the transportation problem is less of a hazard. But a large proportion of schools find this solution geographically impractical.

When a Washington sports writer asked Stephen Early, secretary to the President, what the chances were for the continuance of sports, he said: "I frankly don't know whether sports will be able to continue or not—but I certainly hope they do."

He voiced the hope of millions.

SPORT SHORTS

Al Ettore, retired heavyweight, and Young Terry, middleweight, are new members of the marine corps.

A Memphis golfer made an even-par score for nine holes without paring a single hole. He made three birdies, one eagle and five bogies.

The usual tenure for head coaches of the Detroit Lions is one year.

The football used in the Michigan-Northwestern game went to a spectator who bid $15,000 in war bonds for it.

Yank Fliers in Australia

By W. B. Courtney

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

I am writing this from Port Darwin in the Northern Territory of Australia. The Darwin area is about as far from Sydney and Melbourne as Death Valley is from New York. It is probably wilder in nature and ruder in its white men than any other part of earth under a United Nations flag.

Even the Australians, usually sensitive about references to whatever section of their country, admit it's "bloody Godforsaken." But it's home, for the time being at least, to many Yank bomber and pursuit kids whose advanced flying bases, hacked from the desert scrub and the moribund red earth by their own engineers and labor battalions, white and Negro, dot the "bush" hereabouts.

So very young and lean, habitually wearing only shorts and rubber sneakers, cooked to a partridge brown, raising as much beard as they can, with huge pistols dangling from web belts, these rakish and raffish airmen look, after a couple of weeks, like student pirates.

Life Without Women.

They have to be tough and ingenious to survive down here—the flies, the mosquitoes, the snakes, the heat and the eye-splitting glare that makes the inside of your head raw, the unbearable loneliness of life without women.

They eat only Aussie chow—and second best at that. When they get lump sugar, they mark it with ink for use as playing cards or dominoes. The difficulties of transportation have bogged down most of the commissary, recreational and morale services of our own army.

Cigarettes and other amenities are likely to be stolen before they can pass the long overland trek from our base ports.

When staff officers fly in for visits, they usually load their planes with comforts for the Yanks here—magazines, candy, playing cards, cigarettes and the like. I saw a whole group jump away from unfinished dinner, with shouts of boyish glee, when Gen. Ralph Royce produced out of his plane a baseball, a bat and some fielders' mitts.

American Ingenuity.

Their toughness they take out on the Nips. The only superiority we have in the air of the Southwest Pacific is skill and heart. Their ingenuity is expressed in little ways at once familiar and endearing to an American visitor.

Northern territory is the Land of the White Ant. These various termites build structures, some low mounds, some 20-foot columns, until the plains around Darwin, seen in the moonlight, give you the impression of ruined castles and villages in miniature.

The so-called "magnetic" nests are the most famous—tall, slabwise, sharply templed pillars, the ends of which always point exactly north and south. Woody substance inside, they are covered with fine clay that hardens into fortresses that repel all the termites' enemies.

The Yanks found a use for these. They ax off the tops, chisel out a hollow in the bases—and have fine barbecue or picnic stoves!

All Kinds of Hunting.

The chief unrationed recreation of the Yank airmen here is hunting—Nips in the air, kangaroos, snakes, dingoes or wild dogs, emus, ducks, buffalo, crocodiles on the ground.

The kangaroo remains of greatest interest. The boys catch young ones and try to tame them; each plans to take a 'roo home with him. But they find the 'roos dumb and irresponsible; "just misshapen rabbits."

One squad tent has a mascot—an old 'roo that, on his own, attached himself. He will eat food that's set on the ground. He comes in at night and sleeps under one of the cots. But if you try to pet him he runs out. At reveille he moves out about 30 feet from the tent; sits there all day, watching, sidestepping anyone who goes near him. In four months of this, no one has succeeded in touching him.

The Yanks try to build up auxiliary air-raid warning services with their wild-pet friends. Goannas, a type of monitor lizard, are plentiful in all the camps—roam about all day on their business of catching insects, not allowing the advent of thousands of men to disturb their lives. They are not dangerous—except that if you stand motionless, one may think you are a tree and run up you, with unfortunate results to your clothes and skin from his knife-like claws. The goannas stand on their hind legs and turn their heads when planes go over.

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief!

If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation—simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

Man Bests Elephant

At the beginning of the present century one of Barnum and Bailey's publicity experts saw a chance to get some free newspaper space. "The Greatest Show on Earth" would prove to representatives of the press assembled in Madison Square Garden, New York, on the afternoon of March 27, 1904, which were stronger—men or elephants. Engineers made a special portable hydraulic weighing cylinder equipped with a gauge to register the pull in pounds. One hundred men exerted a pull of .8 pounds for each pound of their own weight, while the circus' mightiest elephant could pull only .73 pounds for each pound of its weight.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

IF WE TOOK AWAY ALL NET INCOME OVER:

The accompanying graph appears in a booklet, "Facts and Figures on War Finance," issued by the Tax Foundation. It shows that if we took every penny of net income over $5,000 in the United States during 1941, we would have only enough money to run the war 47 1/2 days.

This interesting question at once arises: Where does the money come from to run the war the other 317 1/2 days of the year, to say nothing of the civic expenditures of government and the 10 billion in taxes for state and local governments? Of course there are the corporation taxes and the excise taxes on cigarettes and the like, but still the question is not answered.

The Tax Foundation booklet also contains a very interesting table showing to whom the dividends of corporations were paid as late as 1940. There are more than 8,000,000 stockholders in the country. This table shows that of the $4,150,000,000 paid out in dividends by the various corporations, 47 per cent was received by persons whose net income was less than $5,000, or by hospitals, schools, churches, etc.

The People At Large Pay.
Here is a further interesting fact about that table: 17.5 per cent of all money paid in dividends was not reported to the Treasury at all, which means that this amount of dividends was either paid to persons with incomes too small to be reported or to hospitals, schools, churches, etc. This 17.5 per cent of dividends not reported is almost exactly equal to the total amount of dividends paid to persons having an income of over $50,000 per year. In the light of these facts, it is just a little hard to get excited about "economic royalists" and "princes of privilege".

The facts are plain. The costs of government, both for civic expenditures and for the war, are largely borne by people of moderate income. About 80 per cent of the total income of this country is received by people who earn less than $5,000 a year. People of moderate income know all about economy in their family budgets. No one escapes taxation, either direct or indirect.

We are a unit in our patriotic endeavor to win this war. It must be the people who have always known what economy means who must insist that there be economy in civic expenditures in every government, both state and national. We can well take time off to explain to our officials just what we really mean by economy, and how lack of economy places in danger our liberties and our American way of life.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

When the American Expeditionary Force landed in Ireland recently newspapers reported the citizenry remarked at the similarity of the steel helmets worn by our boys with those worn by German troops. These steel hats are protection from shrapnel fragments and other light missiles. We need thousands of them for they are a regular issue to every American soldier.

A smart strap fastens under the chin and they are padded for comfort. One steel helmet costs $5 so every time you fill a $5 stamp book you are buying protection for an American soldier. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day. Help your community reach its War Bond Quota.
